A Letter from the Superintendent, Greg Hughes

Welcome to the 2010/2011 school year at Khartoum American School!

I sincerely hope that all our returning families have had a relaxing break, and our students are all set for an excellent year ahead. For all of our new families I would like to give a special welcome, and I hope that your transition to Khartoum has been as happy and peaceful as I have experienced with my family. Even though we have now been in the country for only four weeks we are amazed at how friendly the Sudanese people are and the hospitality that we have received from both the local people and members of the expatriate communities has been phenomenal.

Our school is already in full swing and the new teachers who have just arrived have brought with them a real energy and enthusiasm that I am sure will be felt throughout the school for many weeks to come. As with all school years, we began with a fantastic orientation session which prepared our staff well for the year ahead and one of the key points to come out of our work was the total commitment by all to continue to make Khartoum American School the most friendly, student-centered school in Africa.

During our brainstorming sessions we identified ways in which we could really build school spirit and develop an even stronger sense of community, and in the days ahead I am hopeful that we will be able to launch many new initiatives that will really make Khartoum American School the focal point of our community.

Even in these early days I can sense the fact that we are really building a special school here in Khartoum, and I am sure that as your children give their daily reports back about life at school they will be relaying the same message.
